Citizens' Committee Calls For Enactment Of Curfew Law

SOLONS TO AID IN BATTLE ON DELINQUENCY

Ordinance Committee Is Instructed To Work Out Legislation

SOME OF BLAME IS LAID TO PARENTS

Strict Enforcement of Law Also Emphasized By Council

City council had under consideration today the request of a citizens' committee to place a curfew in effect in Salem as a means of curbing juvenile delinquency, particularly in war-time.

The plea for a law to help protect teen age girls by keeping them off the streets late at night, followed a News' editorial yesterday urging the adoption of such a measure.

After the citizens' committee cited several recent examples of juvenile delinquency for the benefit of members of city council last night, President of Council C. F. Zimmerman referred the proposal to the ordinance committee and Scholter Henry L. Reese. The curfew hour would be left up to council.

Work With Committee
In preparing the anticipated curfew law, the solicitor and the ordinance committee indicated that they would call in the citizens' committee for a review of the measure before it is presented to council for passage.

Among the speakers for the citizens' committee last night were Walter Deming, Joseph Bloomberg, Joe Kelley and John Weber, Jr., representing the Business Bureau, Kiwanis club, Memorial building and Rotary club, respectively.

They charged that young girls and boys were roaming the streets at hours when they should be in bed, that young girls frequented the taverns, many remaining long after closing hours. They agreed that many parents were to blame for permitting their children to remain out so late.

One of the visitors told council that during last week's blackout two men lured two teen age girls into a local hotel, but declared that the hotel manager quickly put a halt to the rendezvous.

Passage of a curfew law would give the police a leg to stand on, said one of the committee spokesmen, and they could chase kids off the street who had no legitimate reason for being out and they could make arrests, where needed, on charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

One of the visitors told council that police admitted frequently seeing teen age girls on the street in company with men who were in their thirties.

"We realize, we can't legislate people's lives," another organization representative declared, "but the curfew will help a lot toward reducing the likelihood of juvenile delinquency."

Urges Immediate Action
Walter Deming, chairman of the civic committee of the Business Bureau, urged passage of a curfew law now, with the school year just about over and the summer bringing longer evenings.

Solicitor Reese admitted that the institution of a curfew would place

CITY WILL BUY NEEDED ASPHALT

City council last night authorized Service Director Frank Wilson to advertise for bids for asphaltic "hot mix" to be applied to the section of W. State st. between Ellisworth and Howard avenues which is being improved.

The director reported that a complete new base had been installed, 800 tons of slag being used. He said that the street may be opened to traffic for a short time before the final topping is applied.

Councilman Arthur Hanna, lighting committee chairman, appealed to residents not to dig into their curb lawns to sow grass seed for fear that the practically irreplaceable light cables will be damaged.

MISSING CHILD IS FOUND IN SWAMP

North Benton Tot. Object of 8 Hours' Hunt. Up to Waist In Water

None the worse for the experience, four-year old Marilyn Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Martin, stayed indoors at her parents' home at North Benton today, vowing never to spend another night away from home. At least not until she gets to be a little older.

Marilyn wandered away from her home early last evening while it was still daylight. Dusk came and the child could not be found. The frantic parents called for aid and a searching party of about 80 persons was formed.

The "posse" included friends and neighbors, Boys Scouts from Sebring, Salem State Highway Patrolmen Cornelius Csepke and Bernard Hopkins and Deputy Sheriff W. D. Parr of Sebring.

The search went on, hours passed and still no Marilyn. Some members of the searching party grew weary and went home. Others, including the state patrolmen and a neighbor, Earl Burky, refused to give up. Finally, at 4 a. m., Burky came upon the child in a swamp, 300 yards from her home. Still awake, Marilyn was standing almost waist-deep in mud and water.

Brought into the house she was found to have suffered no ill effects from the swamp-land trip. The fact that she was warmly clad at the time she was let outdoors probably accounted for safety.

SENATE GETS RUMI BATTLE

House-Approved Plan Will Wipe Out 75 Per Cent Of '42 Liabilities

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 5 — Undismayed by two defeats in the house, and unsatisfied by the house-approved measure to wipe out 75 per cent of 1942 individual income tax liabilities, Rumi plan advocates today carried their battle to the senate—which they predicted would pass the full tax year abatement plan.

Chairman George (D-Ga.) summoned the senate finance committee into session Thursday for speedy action on tax legislation.

The house late yesterday climaxed a historic party scrap by passing, 313 to 95, a compromise pay-as-you-go bill written by Representative Robertson (D-Va.) and Forand (D-RI). It would wipe out the 1942 income tax liabilities completely for about 90 per cent of the taxpayers—numbering over 23,000,000 persons—and impose a 20 per cent withholding levy against wages and salaries, effective July 1.

Narrowly Escaping Beating
The Democratic majority narrowly escaped its worst drubbing in a decade as it managed to beat down the Republican-backed modified Rumi plan, 266 to 262. A month previously the Democrats beat the bill 215 to 198.

The Republicans then swung swiftly behind the Robertson-Forand compromise, and the house sent this legislation to the senate.

To ease the transition to pay-as-you-go, the bill abates the 6 per cent normal and 13 per cent first bracket surtax on the 1942 income of all taxpayers, erasing about $7,600,000 of the $10,000,000,000 of the total. It removes the 1942 tax liability completely for single persons with incomes up to $2,500 and married persons up to $3,200. The liabilities of others are substantially reduced.

Those not made fully current by the abatement would continue to

MYSTERY MAN TALKS BEFORE HOUSE GROUP

John P. Monroe of R Street Denies His Parties Were "Orgies"

DISCLAIMS ACTING "AS A WAR BROKER"

Occupant of Big Red House Testifies Before House Committee

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 5—His first thumping emphasis, John P. Monroe, mystery man of the big red house on R street, testified today that the parties he gave for some of the capital's socially and politically prominent were "never orgies, never drunken and never attended by any lewd women."

Taking the stand before the house military committee after refusing a week ago to give even his name, Monroe described himself as a manufacturer's representative and said his parties were given "for the best and most intelligent people I knew."

In response to questions he added that "none of my guests can ever say that one word of business was mentioned to them."

"On rare occasions," Monroe told a jammed committee room, his clients were invited to the parties because they had entertained him at dinner while in Washington "and I would feel pretty rotten if I did not return the invitation."

But he repeatedly said that never had he invited anyone to his home "as a war broker."

Changed His Name
Monroe said the house at 2101 R street was "both my place of business and my residence." Appearing with him before the committee was Mrs. Eula Smith, who likewise refused to talk last week. Today Monroe said he employed Mrs. Smith in connection with his work.

Monroe told the committee his name formerly had been Monroe Kaplan, adding he had changed it to John Porter Monroe several years ago.

"I'm a client of hers," he added, referring to Mrs. Smith. "She does a number of things. I'd rather have her state it herself. I'm pretty busy. When I have a lot of stuff to be looked up, she looks it up for me."

Opening the hearing, Chairman May (D-Ky.) remarked that since Monroe's previous appearance the witness had demonstrated a willingness to talk to reporters and added, addressing Monroe, that there was "no desire on the part of anybody on the committee to smear you or anybody else."

The chairman said the committee was not interested in Monroe's social affairs except insofar as they related to war contracts.

"I yield my patriotism and loyalty to no one," Monroe told the committee, adding that "innuendoes" had given the impression that he had "skeletons in my closet."

Monroe said he came to Washington several years ago to try to get into the armed service but failing that became a manufacturer's representative. Previously, he said, he was a member of the specialist reserve and served on active duty.

Monroe clashed frequently with H. Ralph Burton, committee counsel, Monroe asking "has that got anything to do with legislation," when Burton asked him questions.

Once a committee member demanded that May order the witness to refrain from "arguments" in answering questions. Monroe at one point referred to Burton as "my good man."

Denies Getting Contract
Asked whether he ever had obtained a contract from the war department, Monroe pointed to the committee table as he declared: "I've walked over there day in and day out, pounded on the door

RAF BOMBERS HIT DORTMUND

Year's First Major Attack On Industrial Area Is Reported

LONDON, May 5 — A powerful force of Britain's big four-motored bombers delivered a heavy saturation raid last night on the German industrial city of Dortmund from which 30 planes failed to return, the air ministry announced today.

Visibility over the target was good, except for a slight ground haze, said a communiqué, and first reports indicated the bombing was "well concentrated."

It was the first major attack of the war on Dortmund, which is the main east-west transport exit from the Ruhr valley and its teeming industries.

The raid was the RAF's first night foray over Germany since it finished off a blazing April offensive with a heavy attack on Essen last Friday night and followed by a smashing daylight assault on industrial targets in Antwerp by United States Flying Fortress.

It was indicated that a great fleet of the four-engine bombers had made the 350-mile trip to Dortmund and observers estimated several hundred tons of explosives probably had been dropped on the city, which has a normal peacetime population of about 500,000.

Terminus of Canal
In addition to being an important industrial center, Dortmund is the terminus of a canal and is the seat of the Fort-Munden union, one of the largest general industrial combines in Germany. It is also the site of a great oil plant.

Machines, railroad cars and locomotives are the principal finished products of Dortmund's factories. Coal, iron, steel and beer are among its other products.

Damaged Steering Cable No Problem To Ingenious Yanks

By CHARLES P. ARNOT
American Correspondent With the U.S.A.F. in the South Pacific (Distributed By The Associated Press)

WITH THE U. S. ARMY FORCE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, April 21 — Delayed—This is the story of a damaged bomber and two air force sergeants whose inventive genius averted a possible crackup.

Lieut. John L. Jacobs, Jr., of San Francisco, 25-year-old pilot of a Liberator bomber, described Serpts. Van C. Crain, 23, of Caldwell, Tex., and J. J. Bruy, 25, of Canton, O., as "heroes in my book" tonight after he set the big plane down at this advanced base in a perfect landing. Here's why:

The big bomb load from Jacobs' plane had just crashed into installations on Japanese-held Nauri island, 750 miles northeast of Guadalcanal, when six Zeros swarmed about the formation.

"The first burst of machine-gun fire from those Zeros severed my rudder connection cable, and the pedals went limp under my feet," he said. "There was nothing to do but fall out of the formation and take a chance on making it back alone."

Then began a 45-minute running battle during which Jacobs' gunners knocked down or damaged at least two Zeros. Gunfire from the enemy planes knocked out the Liberator's inter-communication and oxygen systems and set fire to a liferaft, but a "crewman was hurt."

Serpt. Charles Duren, 21, of Watertown, Conn., the radio operator, had the narrowest escape.

"One of those bullets actually shot the throat microphone off my neck," he said.

The Liberator finally shook off the Zeros, but Jacobs still was faced with the problem of how to land when he reached this base without rudder control.

"I didn't have to worry long," he said. "A couple of the boys had an idea, so they went to work. When we circled for our landing the rudder cable was as good as new."

Crain and Bruy took wire used to arm bombs and expertly spliced the broken rudder cable—a tedious hour-and-a-half job. Jacobs said the patched-up cable enabled him to make the best landing of his flight career.

The story of Crain and Bruy brought this comment from Brig. Gen. Truman H. Landon, commander of bomber operations in the central Pacific:

"You can mark that down as another sample of American resourcefulness—the kind of resourcefulness that will win the war."

ROOMER SHOT BY LANDLORD

Steps In Front of Bullet Intended for Aetna St. Home Tenant

BULLETIN
Freely admitting the shooting, Chief of Police Ralph Stoffer said, William Redmlovich gave himself up to the chief at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Redmlovich turned over the gun he had used, a .38 caliber weapon.

Frank Ulrich, 34, roomer at the home of Mrs. Raymond Lee Porter, rear 448 Aetna st., was shot and wounded shortly before 8 a. m. today by an irate landlord who had been attempting to get the Porter family to move.

According to Police Chief Ralph Stoffer, the gun wielder is William Redmlovich of 3011 12th st., SW. Canton, owner of the property, who moved to Canton from Salem about a year ago. He disappeared after the shooting and was still at large this afternoon.

Ulrich, a former National Sanitary Co. employee who has been unemployed since receiving a leg injury while at work, was taken to the Central Clinic where the bullet was found to have pierced the man's left side, narrowly missing the heart. The lung is not believed to have been punctured. The victim's condition is described as fairly good.

According to police, Redmlovich appeared at the Porter home about 8 o'clock and mentioned something to the effect, "well, I see you're still here." Police said he had served a three-day removal notice on Mrs. Porter, whose husband entered the army last Dec. 4. He is to come home on a furlough May 11, it was learned.

Ulrich came to the door about the same time and, according to police, stepped in front of Mrs. Porter just as the man described as Redmlovich, pulled a gun and fired.

The assailant is reported to have fled immediately, running across the nearby parking lot of the Bliss Co.

Mrs. Porter assisted Ulrich to a nearby home where they telephoned for police.

BIG NAVY BASE WITHIN RANGE OF ARTILLERY

Allied Troops Continuing Their Advance Along Mediterranean

OTHERS CLOSING ON FERRYVILLE

U. S. Patrols Take Eddekhila, Six Miles From Tebourba

(By Associated Press)
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, May 5—Americans and French, smashing along the Mediterranean toward Bizerte, have reached a point only 10 miles from that naval base, and other American forces closing in from Mateur have driven to within five miles of Ferryville. Allied headquarters advised last today.

Ferryville is 10 miles northeast of Mateur and only eight miles across Lake Bizerte from the naval base.

The penetration to within artillery range of Bizerte was made after beating back a German counter-attack at Djebel Cheniti, north of Lake Achel one of the water defenses protecting the southern approaches to the naval base.

Pushing out of Mateur to the east and southeast, the Americans also made a five-mile gain, and repulsed another light enemy counter-attack launched from Djebel Makna, a ridge on the east side of the River Tine.

Close In On Tebourba
Dispatches this morning from Mateur said American patrols had taken Eddekhila, six miles west of Tebourba. Tebourba is 18 miles west of Tunis and the same distance southeast of Mateur.

(These patrols apparently had branched out from the main movement southeast of Mateur and were near a junction with the British First Army which has been fighting in the Medjerda valley six miles southwest of Tebourba.)

French troops gained in the area east of Medjez-el-Bab, headquarters said, when the Germans throwing 17 tanks into a strong counter-attack and losing 12-two Mark VI monsters, nine Mark IV's and one Mark III.

The French advance about Pont Du Fahs was made against stiffening resistance, it was noted.

In the south patrolling continued on the Eighth Army front, it was reported.

The fighting was most bitter in the area east of Medjez-el-Bab, headquarters said, when the Germans throwing 17 tanks into a strong counter-attack and losing 12-two Mark VI monsters, nine Mark IV's and one Mark III.

NO STRIKES—A PUBLIC POLICY

President Roosevelt's review of the development of a no-strikes-in-wartime policy has called attention to the fact it exists only as a statement of intention by a board of industrial and labor representatives, not as a federal law. The policy can be and has been violated with impunity.

Various proposals in congress to codify a wartime procedure for handling labor disputes have been kicked around till they got lost. There has been conspicuous absence of the majority pressure needed to obtain action, not necessarily on the proposals in the extreme form in which some were introduced but on any legislative expression of national policy concerning work stoppages in wartime.

This has made it more difficult for some labor leaders to discipline their members and less difficult for others, with opposite intentions, to precipitate trouble. Some strikes have brought about government seizure of plants; others have been tolerated. It has been a long time—a year ago last December—since the 24-member board named by the President to develop a policy on industrial disputes during the war submitted its recommendations of no strikes or lockouts and peaceful settlement of disputes by a war labor board to be named by the chief executive. Aside from Mr. Roosevelt's acceptance of the board's decision, its recommendations never have had official status.

The time is ripe, while public interest is focused on the necessity of uninterrupted production, to give the no-strike policy the backing of at least a congressional resolution—and preferably a definitive law laying down a proper procedure such as governs railroads in handling their labor disputes. Failure to do this almost certainly will make the brief work stoppage in the coal industry not the turning point but merely one more instance of costly confusion in labor relations in wartime.

EXPECTANT LAWYERS

Sneak previews of the income tax revision being prepared for taxpayers by the "experts" should reassure lawyers. They would need a couple of years to figure out what congress had done if some of the wild ideas ever got loose. No ordinary taxpayer would trust himself to pay anything without hiring a lawyer to tell him what to do.

The main thing is that nearly all the schemes call for collecting income taxes at the source, probably starting July 1. This will do more to hold down inflation than all the speeches of the last four months laid end to end. It was one of the two most important features of the Ruml plan. If it can be salvaged, the day will be saved.

The other feature, the shift from payment of taxes incurred in the current year to the following year to a pay-as-you-go plan, will come eventually, but apparently the odds now are against it in the house. Perhaps the senate will be able to do something about it when income tax revision finally gets out of the reach of Chairman Doughton and can be discussed on its merits.

LIQUOR RATIONING

The Buckeye Tavern, trade journal of the Ohio liquor industry, naturally is concerned with the new liquor rationing in this state. Since it is in a better position to discuss this minor wartime problem than most of the state's consumers, they should be interested to know that the industry sees rationing on an increased scale as "inevitable for the duration."

Thirteen of the 17 monopoly states have instituted systems of consumer rationing. While the Tavern confines its discussion to what is going on in monopoly states, it is significantly not interested in the comparisons many Ohioans have been making with states where liquor is temporarily more abundant. The fact is, of course, that monopoly states, not being in the business of speculative buying, had not hoarded a supply of liquor. Their shortages reflect the shortage at the source.

Eventually, as the effect of hoarding disappears, Ohioans probably will discover that their chances of buying a bottle of liquor are just as good as the chances of anyone else in the country. The fact is that no one's chances are going to improve until the war has been won.

SLIDING HAMMER FOR WATCH REPAIRING

Some of Secretary of State Hull's countrymen seem to believe honest discussion of his pet theory of reciprocity is barred by respect for Mr. Hull, himself. This is a silly and dangerous attitude.

The merits of reciprocity can't be changed by talking about them any more than Mr. Hull can be changed. There is, nevertheless, something to be discussed. The practice of trying to achieve reciprocal goodwill and commercial advantage by means of tariff, an instrument never intended for that purpose, is wide open to both challenge and defense. It is like repairing a watch with a sledgehammer.

Congressmen who insist on making a legitimate debate of the issues in connection with renewal of the reciprocal trade program are not impressed with the tendency to build a wall around Secretary Hull and his favorite project. Particularly are they unimpressed with Mr. Hull's open position that the program must be continued without change for another three years. In a rapidly changing world, many of them believe some new provision for elasticity should be added, such as a provision enabling congress to set aside agreements by concurrent votes.

The tariff never was intended to be an instrument of international policy. It was variously a means of raising revenue, or protecting domestic enterprise, principally the latter. Plainly, it cannot be used now to protect domestic enterprise and, at the same time, to promote foreign enterprise, which is one of the aspects of reciprocity. There needs to be more, not less, discussion of reciprocity. It's a fine idea—almost as fine as the Golden Rule—but even the Golden Rule is subject to certain limitations.

SICILY AND SARDINIA
By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Axis fear that the Allies may be getting set to invade the big islands of Sicily and Sardinia, even before the Tunisian campaign is finished, isn't such a crazy idea at that.

The Germans assert a lot of Allied shipping, including invasion barges, is assembled at Gibraltar. This announcement likely is a fishing expedition for information, but that doesn't necessarily mean the report isn't true. It will be recalled Berlin was broadcasting close-to-the-bone information about the Allied fleet for the North African landing last fall some days before the event actually took place.

However, the purpose of this article isn't to debate whether the boche report is true. The point is it wouldn't be surprising to find the Allies preparing for invasion of Italian territory to coincide with the wind-up of the Tunisian show, which today is reported as continuing to go well for the right side. And, as the Nazis plaintively observe, there's no law which says such an invasion has to await the surrender of the last Axis soldier on African soil.

The new Allied strategy in relation to the entire Axis war-machine seems to be epitomized in the Tunisian offensive. That's to hit the enemy at as many vital points as possible simultaneously and to keep on hitting, so as to make him divide his strength and fight without pause for rest or repair.

Now apart from the fact that Sicily is the natural bridge between Africa and the Italian mainland, it flanks the narrow and shallow channel which forms a bottle-neck in the Mediterranean between the great island and Cap Bon, Tunisia. Only 90 miles separate Sicily from Africa at this point, and all through shipping must pass here.

The result is the Sicilian channel has become a hunting ground for Axis warplanes, many of which have been based on Sicily. Sardinia, which is only a little more than a hundred miles from Tunisia, also holds a club over this channel.

What more natural than that the Allies should have a housecleaning of Sicily and Sardinia with the wind-up of the Tunisian campaign? One of the prime objectives of the whole African offensive is to reopen the Mediterranean shipping routes which long have been impractical for ordinary shipping.

Any Allied invasion of Italy, or any attack up through the Balkans, calls for a wide open Mediterranean for United Nations shipping.

Washington Round-up

News and Views, Briefly
On What's Going On In Capital

WASHINGTON, May 5.—At least 75 per cent of the nation's 1942 individual income tax liabilities seemed sure of abatement today, but supporters of the Ruml plan swung on with their scrap to skip the whole year's bill.

And there were predictions the senate might go farther than the house-approved 75 per cent measure and support the full year's abatement.

Meanwhile, the rest of capital attention was rationed out among such things as reports on the Aleutians battle, developments in the coal dispute, labor legislation, war and food production, the mystery house on R street and a new campaign against pleasure driving.

The Aleutians struggle was underscored by delayed reports on how an outnumbered American naval force had beaten back a Japanese attempt to push supplies and possibly reinforcements through to the north Pacific outposts. However, authorities here warned that the job of throwing the Japanese out of the Aleutians is one which will be done by American troops landing under fire.

For the Duration?

At home, the stalemate coal wage dispute stirred speculation the 15-day truce under which industry now is operating may be extended indefinitely with Fuel Administrator Harold L. Ickes continuing to serve as boss of Uncle Sam's coal fields—perhaps for the duration.

Paralleling the problem was indication the senate might send the normally plant seizure bill back to committee as the third day of debate started on the controversial labor measure which already has been softened by amendments.

Senate impatience with Washington wrangling over war production issues was seen in the action of Chairman Truman (D-Mo) and his colleagues of the war investigating committee who began drafting a report calling for "coordinated direction" of war production under a man with authority to pass on all questions and decide all conflicts.

This followed creation by War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson of an Office of Civilian Requirements under A. D. Whiteside, Rubber Director William M. Jeffers, who testified before the committee in the fading battle between the aviation gasoline and rubber programs, was known to have told some members he considered Nelson's move had wiped out his job, but the latter insisted the appointment wouldn't affect Jeffers' job.

The Mystery House

In the house, the military committee investigating war contracts sought to unweave the web of mystery which has been spun around the big red house at 2101 R street. Mrs. Eula Smith and John Monroe were called to tell about the social gatherings at the house—and the officials who attended them.

There were reports War Food Administrator Chester C. Davis soon would announce a new field organization to carry out food production programs heretofore administered by local farmer committees under direction of the Agricultural Adjustment administration and agricultural war boards.

And Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown announced a new and nation-wide campaign against pleasure driving on supplemental rations, declaring east coast gasoline supplies "are shorter now than at any time since the war began."

Drivers will be interviewed by police and OPA investigators on occasion, and in some cases "license numbers will be noted and the drivers will be asked to present an explanation to the district OPA office," Brown reported.

Theatre

The technicolor musical film, "Happy Go Lucky," will be at the State theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The picture tells the story of a fortune hunting Miss Mary Martin who arrives at a resort island in the Caribbean aboard a luxury cruiser and pretends to be the daughter of a millionaire.

Her gold doesn't last long and two beach combers, Dick Powell and Eddie Bracken, come to her rescue to help her in her campaign. Betty Hutton is also starred in the film.

Bill Boyd has the job of proving the innocence of a friend who is accused of bank robbery in the western action film, "Lost Canyon," at the Grand Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

A double feature, "Murder in Times Square" and "Escort Girl," is scheduled at the Grand for the last time tonight.

Lum and Abner are starred in the comedy film, "Two Weeks to Live" the story which is based on a slapstick plot that brings the two rural comers to a big city for a fling at urban life. The film is showing at the State tonight only.

PITTSBURGH, Cal.—John Buffo, truck driver, insists he is a victim of mafia from heaven. He found a mysterious box on his truck without any knowledge how it got there. He drove it to the police station, where it was found to be a box full of Bibles. The police turned it over to the USO club, and Buffo insists it could only have dropped onto his truck direct from heaven.

BLUSHING TERMED "GENTEEL DISORDER"

Time Is About Only Corrective, Says Clendening

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
EVERY ONCE in a while some worried ingenue writes me and wants me to prescribe an infallible remedy to prevent blushing. It is,

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

according to these correspondents, embarrassing, their companions make fun of them, they don't like to be teased and they are sensitized to blushing.

I feel very sympathetic toward these people because I was a blusher once myself. I can recommend time as a remedy. I have now reached the stage where my complexion, my self-consciousness, my sensibilities and my emotions are so indurated that even being insulted by Hitler would not cause me to blush.

The medical profession has not paid a great deal of attention to this important physiological experience. The only literature in my possession on the subject is a work by Thomas H. Burgess on "The Physiology or Mechanism of Blushing," published 1899.

Dr. Burgess' style is Victorian; he feels that blushing is exemplified "either from timidity during the modest and sensitive days of boyhood or from the conscious feeling of having erred in mature years." (The latter is something I have never experienced.) Dr. Burgess states also: "Blushing cannot be excited by physical means—only by the passions. We can make an individual laugh against his will by tickling the soles of his feet, we can make him cry by corporal punishment, we can make him tremble with fear—we can arouse his anger by striking him, but we can only make him blush by appealing to his conscience."

He rather contradicts himself a page or so further on when he relates that the face of Charlotte Corday, who was executed during the French Revolution, became suffused with a blush after the head was severed from the body. I would be inclined to classify the severance of the head from the body as a physical cause.

He wrote too early to be aware of the physiology of the vasomotor nerves—that is, the nerves which are not under control of the will and which automatically by their impulses can contract the small blood vessels anywhere in the body or dilate them. Yesterday we considered the phenomenon of fainting, in which the blood vessels of the brain contract by action of the vasomotor nerves. Blushing is just the opposite; the capillaries of the skin dilate due to the influence of emotions upon the automatic nervous system.

All People's Blush

As a matter of fact blushing should be rather a badge of honor; it shows that all hope of integrity and decency is not lost. All races blush. It may not be observable in the Negroes, but there have been observed cases of Negroes with a small scar on the face which changed color under emotional stress. But if you want to see blushing in full flower, you should study an albino.

The albino is born devoid of pigment. His skin is unnaturally white, the eye has an iris that looks reddish because it has neither brown, black or blue pigment in it, his hair is from birth absolutely dead white.

The lower parts of their skin, however, are well supplied with blood vessels and albinos are prone to blush. Their sensibilities are easily excited and when an emotion stirs them, the natural dead-whiteness of the skin suddenly becomes suffused with color which stretches over the neck and down the arms, growing from pink to red, to blood color, finally to a purplish, hectic blush. Even the eyes take on an appearance as of fire.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. K.—Would the wearing of contact lenses be harmful to the eyes?

Answer: Everyone whom I know who has ever worn contact lenses says that they are perfectly comfortable and cause no irritation. The patient often forgets and goes to sleep with the lenses in place. They have been worn for years without causing any special irritation.

B. C. W.—What is lichen planus—symptoms and cause?

Answer: Lichen planus is a skin disease of a mild nature which is probably due to an infection. It usually yields to treatment.

DEATH GOES NATIVE

By MAX LONG

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

As we came in sight of the cottage, Herb was trimming gardenia bushes in front of Turva's house. He took one look at us, dropped his shears and shouted something.

We turned in at the first house and found Mrs. Delmar lying on a wicker chaise longue on the lanai. She sprang to her feet as she saw Komako's uniform.

"Did you find my husband?" "Not yet," Komako told her. Deputy sheriff got men watching steamer landing and airport to see he don't get away."

"She was in a change of sarong, noticed but was otherwise disturbed. She looked as if she hadn't slept, and her eyes were bloodshot. Komako observed her closely and glanced into the living room beyond. It was in complete disorder, papers crumpled and strewn about everywhere—the kind of chaos writers create in their last effort at making final copy. Komako had a question in his eyes.

"But that was a hallucination," said as plainly as words, "Budd could clean up samsan?" He turned back to her and began:

"Hasty says you was out to his samsan last night looking for husband. You look in cabinet?" "Hasty! Oh, you mean Mr. Hoyt. Yes, I was in the cabin and the place where the engine is, beyond the stairs."

Komako looked a little deflated. He anyone who knew boats well enough to use that boom would say "companionway." He drew the keys from his pocket and held them out to her. "You know whose?"

"She took the ring, examined the keys and handed them back to him. 'I've never seen them before. I know they aren't ours.'"

As Komako put the keys in his pocket, Herb and Turva hurried from the path into the lanai. Turva was asking eagerly:

"Did they find Mr. Delmar?" "No," Mr. Delmar said wearily. "I suppose we've got to wait till word comes in from the steamer landing."

"I introduced Komako and he fastened his attention on Herb. "You send for cop to come down here," he stated.

"I did not understand at the moment why Herb began to bluster. I got to look out for everything—and I don't overlook much—"

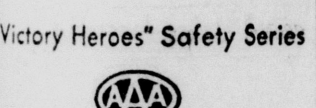

Bike Riders Warned

CORRECT SIGNALS

ITS THE SAME IN TRAFFIC

"Victory Heroes" Safety Series

Unless both child and adult bicyclists learn and practice safe bicycle driving rules, 1943 will see a great increase in the 900 fatalities and 37,000 injuries which involved bicyclists in 1941. A. P. Morris, manager of the Columbiana County Motor club declared today in announcing distribution of May AAA-OSAA bicycle safety posters to local schools. The poster emphasizes the need for bicyclists to give arm signals of intention to turn or stop to oncoming motorists.

"Use of bicycles is increasing by leaps and bounds with many adults taking to this popular two-wheeled vehicle for shopping and going to and from work," Morris added.

"Boys and girls especially between the ages of five and 14 are great bicycle enthusiasts, and it is a sad fact that more than half of the fatalities involving bicyclists involve this age-group. Too, it is amazing how few bicycle drivers realize that they must know and obey the same traffic regulations as automobile drivers. Bicycles are considered just as much a part of traffic as any other vehicle."

"The new AAA-OSAA safety poster is one of the popular Victory Heroes series issued this school year by the American Automobile Association with which the club is affiliated. One section of the poster depicts a naval officer and sailor signaling to a nearby aircraft carrier; the other, a boy on a bicycle using the proper arm signal for turning to advise an oncoming motorist. The slogan is Correct Signals May Mean Life or Death; It's the Same in Traffic!"

Teachers are being urged, he added, to emphasize all the rules of safe bicycle operation in safety lessons during the next four weeks, including the following: (a) Obey traffic laws, signs and signals; (b) When driving on streets keep close to the right-hand curb (ride on sidewalks if local authorities permit); (c) Always give proper arm signal to indicate a change in course or when stopping; (d) Never ride onto automobiles, trucks or streetcars; (e) Never carry another passenger on the bicycle; (f) Keep both hands on the handlebars; (g) Carry a front and rear light when driving at night; (h) Have a bell or other sounding device in good working order; (i) Obtain license if one is required by local authorities; (j) Check tires, brakes and other bicycle equipment frequently so that they are always in good condition; (k) Park the bicycle so that it is not in the way of pedestrians or automobile drivers.

Then I saw that Budd had approached quietly from behind me and was looking coldly at Herb. "So you have to look after everything, Herb?" He transferred his gaze to Komako's star. "Did you send for the police without consulting me?"

Herb looked absurdly like a small boy caught in mischief, with his red face and the fresh smear of zinc ointment on his nose. Then he pulled himself together and retorted with some spirit:

"You wasn't doing anything about it—and Bessie was worried stiff. Besides, I—I—" He stopped, glancing at Mrs. Delmar.

Budd was looking measurably at Komako. "I understand from Mrs. Delmar, Officer, that you were requested to keep watch for Delmar up in the plantation country."

Komako studied him lazily. "You not think deputy sheriff be interested to hear somebody saw corpus in locker on Hasty's samsan?"

"But that was a hallucination—" Budd turned abruptly on Herb. "Did you send out a scare story like that when we had no evidence to support it? We'll have all those curious plantation people down here annoying us!"

Herb gulped and started to answer, but Budd turned back to Komako. "Officer, we have Dr. Laatham's opinion that Mr. Hoyt saw things—as in a nightmare—after suffering a blow on the head and drinking whiskey. He must have told you that we all visited the samsan and found no indication of anything out of the ordinary."

I had been watching Bessie Delmar, wondering if she was hearing about my gruesome story for the first time. Her face wore a faint closed smile and she said tiredly:

"I know my husband wasn't killed. Herb told me of Mr. Hoyt's vision last night, but it didn't worry me. You see, I know he meant to double-cross me about our play. So I'm sure he's on his way out of here."

She turned away and went into the living room, fussing around among the papers.

Komako looked after her, then turned back to Herb. "You been trying to tell why you not too sure maybe Hasty be dreaming, and you think maybe Hasty is dreaming, and you think more better send for cop?"

Herb hesitated and shot another glance toward Mrs. Delmar. "It's just an idea," he whispered hoarsely, "but I wiped something off the cabin top on my shorts. When I looked at them in the light, at home, it was—well, like blood."

"Might be from fish," Komako said mildly. He buried his hand in his crisp gray curls and appeared to be at a loss as to his next step. I had seen him play the dumb cop before, and I had always seen it disarm people—whites, that is. Never knives—they knew him too well. He said quietly:

"You know, cops got to do some work. Well, then, we just say 'sposen Hasty see what he says. Then I can ask questions.' He produced his red notebook and sat down, putting on his reading spectacles which always made him look like a benign grandfather.

A flicker of amusement came into Budd's scholarly face. He pulled at his point of beard and readjusted his own glasses.

Glancing past him, I saw the Wests coming toward the house with the English couple. Josephine was evidently telling them—with gestures of the happenings during their absence, and Thornton put in a word at intervals. They joined the group on the lanai and Turva began whispering to them. Seen thus more closely, I observed that Rawson had a typically closed British expression, cold blue eyes and stubborn jaw. His wife's face was long and angular but she had an inquisitive nose, matched by a lively curiosity in her eyes.

Komako took off his spectacles, glanced at the newcomers, and asked Budd: "Who is mad at Mr. Delmar? You know?"

"No one in the colony had anything against him," Budd stated positively. "When sober—which was the rule—he was a charming fellow. In fact, Officer, we have led a singularly peaceful happy life here together—until Mr. Hoyt came in his samsan."

I got it. It was a faint jab, but the first indication from the colonists that I was to be put on the spot if necessary.

Rawson spoke up argumentatively from his place beside Turva: "I should hardly call Delmar charming, Budd. As a matter of fact, he went out of his way to—"

Turva's hand on his arm stopped him. He turned and looked inquiringly at her, then finished: "I mean to say, charming is hardly the word, really."

Mrs. Rawson's eyes flickered from one to another of us. "It's too awful," she chirped. "Fancy all this happening while we were away! At any rate, Gerald and I have an alibi—just that the proper word, Gerald?"

"Yeah, you lucky," Komako answered her. "Now, Mr. Budd, I like to ask where you was after Hasty leave your house till he come again with story of what he find on samsan?"

"Why, right there on my lanai. Turva Massie came in and we chatted of plans for a luau for the Hawaiians."

Komako searched out Turva, whom Budd had indicated in the group. She nodded decisively and Komako turned to Josephine.

"And you, missus?" "That's Mrs. West," I interjected.

"Oh," Komako consulted his notes again. "From you I want to know why you was all bothered and upset when you come back to Mr. Budd's after Hasty come too?"

"Was I?" she asked, and looked at me accusingly as if I had tattled. "Well—" She glanced nervously at Thornton. "Mr. Delmar wasn't himself, you know. He had been brow-beating Mrs. Delmar for more liquor and was going out to the samsan to get it. She went indoors. He—he wanted me to go with him. But I—I wouldn't—"

She finished in a breathless rush. "Then I ran back to Mr. Budd's house to see how Mr. Hoyt was feeling. I felt so sorry for him."

"So you not go to samsan," Komako observed, writing busily. "But you have little fight with Delmar?"

"No—not!" she objected in a frightened voice. Komako looked over at Thornton who was frowning blackly at Josephine. "You her husband?" he inquired interestedly.

"Yes," Thornton West said shortly. "And if you're looking for alibis, I haven't got one. After the row at Budd's house I started for the falls to get some gelatine filter sheets. I'd left up there—photographic stuff that won't stand damp. My flashlight burned out and I came home to find Hoyt there. That was about eight-thirty."

Mrs. Delmar prowled restlessly back to Komako. "What a silly waste of time! Shouldn't you be doing something? Can you trust that deputy sheriff to keep on the search?"

"Oh, sure, sure, hunt every place!" Komako said comfortingly. "When Mrs. West see you go into house—you stay there, Mr. Delmar? You ain't worried then, because Delmar have this play with him?"

"No, I was just that big a fool," she admitted bitterly. "But I got to thinking how he took my name off the play—and then I saw that he meant to ski pout—take it to New York and cash in on it—without me! That's when I started out to look for him."

Komako tackled Herb. "And now you. Where was you from time when Hasty get hit till you get hit?"

Herb came back at him with a torrent of words which seemed to comprise a well-planned alibi: "I was up at the chicken runs with Henry, watching for a mongoose that's been getting the chickens. I went there right after the fight, and Henry went with me—he hadn't gone back to the village with Mokino. You can ask Henry. I looked at my wrist-watch and showed it to him at nine-three, when no mongoose showed up. We came back and Henry went on home. I came straight down to the shore to see if the canoes were okay.... Now I want to ask you something. When are you going to investigate who hit me?"

"I put in: 'Say it took you five minutes to walk down to the canoes—then you should have seen me rowing out to the samsan, because I left the Wests at nine o'clock.'"

"Well, I didn't see you," he asserted, "because maybe you was waiting around to hit Delmar—and you hit me instead."

I bit back the argument that somebody had already killed Delmar on the samsan, and at that moment Komako rose and looked interestedly over Herb's head, out into the sunshine.

BATTLE IN KUBAN AREA INCREASING

Ground Fighting Mounts, Keeping Pace With Air Warfare

MOSCOW, May 5.—Ground fighting north east of Novorossisk mounted today, keeping pace with the terrific air battles in the Kuban valley in which the German air force is reported to have lost more than 125 planes in the last two days.

The heavy weight of Soviet artillery is pounding the Nazis north east of the Black sea port which still is German held, although the Russians have been south and east of Novorossisk for some time.

The last-published Soviet war front map showed the Red army line stretching northward from the Black sea to the Sea of Azov across the Kuban delta, but with a considerable bulge in the middle of the line.

The Germans acknowledged a forced withdrawal 20 miles above the port of Novorossisk and the loss to the Russians of the town of Krymskaya, only 17 miles northeast of the naval base.

If the Red army is able to drive forward from this northeastern sector the Germans will be badly hampered in the port itself.

The German radio declared the Russians lost 75 planes in fighting Monday and Tuesday.

"Canning" Will Be Health For Victory Subject Thursday

"Spring Canning" will be the subject for the second nutrition class of the Health For Victory club at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in the Salem High school auditorium.

The class again will be in charge of Dorothy Trowbridge, home economist who has had 10 years of experience in her field. Sponsored by the Lions club, the initial class meeting a month ago attracted so many housewives that arrangements were made to transfer the next session to the High school building.

With food rationing making it necessary for housewives to plan now for next winter's meals, Miss Trowbridge will describe five ways to preserve food: Dehydrating, quick freezing, brining, canning and storing foods in cellars and pits.

The main part of her talk, however, will deal with the preparation of food for quick freezing and four principal ways to can foods, including pressure cooker, oven or roaster, water bath and open kettle methods.

Discussing the coming meeting, Miss Trowbridge today said: "Many women who never canned foods will give a slight shudder at the idea of remembering the childhood days when they saw a boiler on the stove filled with bubbling tomatoes. 'But canning today is different; it's streamlined. The pressure cooker, electric oven and roaster methods eliminate the mess that used to go with canning.'"

Some women who never did any canning, Miss Trowbridge pointed out, probably will fear their lack of previous experience will make it difficult to preserve foods in such a way that there will be no spoiling.

"If certain fundamental rules are followed, canning will be completely successful," the home economist explained. "The first rule is always use good quality, fresh, clean fruits and vegetables. Blanch all vegetables in a steam bath is the second requirement. Other musts are to sterilize all containers and use the proper equipment."

COLUMBIANA

Rev. Eugene C. Beach, pastor of the First Christian church, Youngstown, was the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club Monday evening. Lee Myers presided. Guests were William Longshore. Rev. Beach gave a review of "The Life of Will Rogers."

Miss Miriam Esterly entertained a group of friends at a dinner party at her home Tuesday evening. The evening was spent in a social manner.

The annual Mother-Daughter banquet of the Daughters of the King of the Lutheran church was held at the church Tuesday evening. Mothers of members and members of the Mary Martha class were guests. A coverish supper was served at 6:30. Devotionals were in charge of Mrs. Clyde Yarian. The program included music and entertainment.

The tin can collection got under way with a bad start Monday as Chairman Harry Lundgren was unable to secure sufficient help. Some cans were collected Monday evening.

However, Mr. Lundgren asks that all housewives save their cans and they will be collected sometime Saturday.

Only cans that have been properly prepared will be collected. The cans are to be put in a suitable container and placed at the curb in front of homes. If it rains Saturday the cans may be left on front porches and they will be collected. Housewives are also asked to take their old silk hose to either Tidd's or Holloway's store.

All furs are to be taken to meat departments where the fixed price will be paid. This is a county-wide effort being made to raise the monthly percentage of salvage in this county.

He added he had never solicited the companies to represent them but that in very instance they "came to me."

Chicago Cubs Are In National League's Cellar Division

NOVIKOFF, HITTER FROM LAST YEAR, REMAINS HOLDOUT

Cardinals Beat Chicago 11-3
Tuesday: Phillies
Stop Dodgers

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
The most interesting non-participating observer of the goings-on in the major leagues these days must be Louis Novikoff, fuming on the front porch of his hacienda at South Gate, Calif.

The mad Russian is a holdout and he's mad. More precisely, he is angry, not crazy—at least not to the extent of overlooking the Chicago Cubs scraping bottom in the standings of the National League today.

The Cubs introduced last year's ball to Chicago for the first time yesterday and 3,908 fans, the biggest crowd of the day, saw a game in which there were 25 hits for a total of 36 bases and 14 runs. But unfortunately from the Chicago standpoint, 15 of the hits, including a home run by Whitey Kuroski, were made by the St. Louis Cardinals, who won 11-3.

Of the 10 Chicago hits not a single one was made by an outfielder.

Call Seems Likely
A call to Novikoff seems bound to come soon. He was one of eight hitters who averaged 300 or better in the National league last year.

Chicago's American league club, the White Sox, also is in the cellar, but this is causing no disturbance because it was picked to finish about seventh while the sports writers before the season rated the Cubs third in the senior circuit.

The Philadelphia Phillies vaulted pretentiously into sixth place in the National league by beating the Brooklyn Dodgers 3-1 in a twilight game.

Jack Kraus, the rookie southpaw whom the Dodgers sent to the Phillies a few weeks ago, pitched five-hit ball for his second success against Brooklyn.

The Giants were shipped 5-3 by the Boston Braves as Jim Tobin pitched six-hit ball and batted in three runs with a pair of singles. Pittsburgh was outbatted by Cincinnati 12-9, but nevertheless beat the Reds 8-3 as rookie Xavier Rescigno worked his way out of continual jams.

Yanks in Lead

In the American league the New York Yankees kept half a step ahead of Cleveland by beating the Boston Red Sox 4-3. Spud Chandler allowed only six hits and one earned run for his second win.

The Indians squeezed out a 2-1 decision over the White Sox in a tight game for Jim Bagby's third triumph. He allowed just five hits and no scoring after the first frame.

Virgil Trucks of Detroit also achieved his third victory without a defeat as the Tigers stopped the St. Louis Browns 4-3, but he had to have hitless rescue work for 1 2-3 innings by Dizzy Trout to weather a belated offensive by the Browns. The Philadelphia Athletics matched the Phils and also climbed to sixth place, the Mackmen defeating the Washington Senators, 3 to 1, behind the three-hit pitching of their Mexican rookie, Jesse Flores.

SAN JOSE, Cal. — Staff Sgt. Marine Shoots Down First 7 Japanese Planes He Ever Saw

(An Associated Press dispatch from U. S. navy headquarters in the South Pacific April 21 disclosed that Lieut. James E. Swett, a young Marine corps aviator, had been credited officially with an unprecedented accomplishment—downing seven Japanese planes in a single action over the southern Solomons April 7. Now from Guadalcanal, the scene of Swett's achievement, comes a first hand account of his experience. Swett's nose was broken in a blind landing in Gavutu harbor after the combat, and he only recently has been released from a hospital.)

By OLEN CLEMENTS
GUADALCANAL, May 5.—(Delayed)—Lieut. James E. Swett of San Mateo, Calif., who shot down the first seven Japanese planes he ever saw, is Guadalcanal's No. 1 hero of the day, but sometimes his distinction disturbs him.

The 22-year-old Marine corps officer accomplished his feat in the record-breaking time of 20 minutes and in a single combat, something—so far as is known here—no other flier has done in this or any other war.

He's No Killer
Yet this tall Californian is no killer. In fact, he doesn't like killing at all and admits he was sleepless for two nights after his achievement.

"I just didn't like the thought of all those people burning to death," he said. "My conscience hurt after it happened, and yet I knew the Japs don't deserve any sympathy."

Baer Rates Louis "Greatest," Says Schmeling Hit Hardest

BY DILLON GRAHAM

AP Features Sports Editor
NEW YORK—There's no doubt in Pvt. Max Baer's mind as to who was the greatest fighter he ever fought.... Joe Louis, the chocolate thumper who took off on Maxie's chin some eight years ago. But it's a bit surprising to learn that Baer doesn't rate Jim Braddock, the Irishman who took his title among the top ten batters he has met.

Command, teaching boxing and wrestling to thousands of soldiers in California and Nevada.

In a bull session with his khaki-clad mates the other day Max was asked to rate his opponents. Louis gave him his worst licking, knocking him out in the fourth round in 1935. So Max didn't hesitate in naming Joe as No. 1. Max Schmeling is second on Baer's list, and he considers his defeat of the German in 1933 as his greatest triumph.

Continuing with his rating of fighters, Baer put Tommy Loughran in third place, Primo Camera in fourth, Ernie Schaaf, fifth, Johnny Risko, sixth, Paulino Uzcudun, seventh, Tommy Farr, eighth, King Levinsky, ninth, and Tom Heeney, tenth.

Max says "that Nazi, Schmeling," hit him harder than any other man. It was in 1933—

"Dempsey always told me that when a man hit me hard, I should aim for the middle and wham back. Well, sir, when Schmeling took that terrific punch at me that broke my nose—he just seemed to surround me. There were Schmeling's on all sides of me and in front of me, so I aimed for the middle, and sure enough, the Nazi went down."

"I was at the peak of my fighting career that year—the year before I won the title. If I'd fought Louis then, I think I could have beaten him. As it was, I took on the Louis fight in 1935 because there was $150,000 in it."

"Two months before, in a match with Eddie Simms in Cleveland, my hand had been smashed and I went to the hospital. The doctors said it would take eight months to harden the cartilage, but the offer of the Louis fight was good and I couldn't say no. Naturally, I didn't last long."

Baer had plenty of tough fights in his fistic career. The most gruelling was in Reno, Nevada, July 4, 1931, when he fought Uzcudun with the temperature 115 in the shade. Dempsey was the promoter. He helped train Baer and went with him to Reno. Ancil Hoffman, manager of the Baers, and the man who really put them on the map, was there too, of course.

But it was Dempsey who gave him advice on how to fight, then turned around and gave the decision to the other man.

Max said:

"I'd hit Uzcudun and he'd say in his thick speech, 'He fouled me!' Dempsey'd say, 'Foul him again!' I'd tangle with the Spaniard and he'd say, 'He butt me!' Dempsey'd say, 'Butt him again!' Finally after 20 rounds in the blistering heat, Dempsey gave Uzcudun the decision. Next day, though, Jack was my best man when I got married the first time! He was my friend!"

Baer thinks it very likely some of the units in the Sacramento area will produce good fighters—perhaps even professional prospects for that after-the-war period.

You can't tell—I might even be back in the ring myself. Most people think I'm through. Maybe I am, but if you say you're through, that's all there is to it. If you withhold a decision, there's always a chance for a comeback.

"Look at Braddock. He was a down-and-out old man when he fought me. I was going to be big-hearted and let him make a show-up. I didn't train. I was so cocksure, so undertrained, that he won the fight after we'd gone 15 rounds."

With a wide grin, Max said, "Maybe this old man will come back, too."

INDIANS, YANKEES, BROWNS TO FIGHT IT OUT—BOUDREAU

So Declares Cleveland's Manager: Ray Mack Put Is In 1-A Draft Class

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, May 5.—Manager Lou Boudreau hasn't changed his mind about the part his Cleveland Indians will play in this year's pennant-grabbing contest.

Before the opening of the season the 25-year-old pilot volunteered a statement that the Tribe would be the team to beat. Last night at Akron Boudreau declared his charges would battle it out with the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Browns.

He spoke at the Akron Touchdown club's meeting honoring the University of Akron's Zippers, who set a new school record by winning 18 basketball games, and the city championship East High eagles.

Trials hopes for the flag were bolstered by the news that Second Baseman Ray Mack has been reclassified from 1-A to 3-A.

Al Milnar and Chubby Dean hurl for the Redskins today as they oppose the Chicago White Sox in a double header at League park. Lefty Edgar Smith and Lee (Buck) Ross are the Sox starters.

Jim Bagby annexed his third mound victory in as many starts yesterday as the Tribe edged the Pale Hose 2 to 1 in the series opener.

Bagby was wild in the early innings but in the last six stanzas he allowed only one Chicagoan to reach first base. The Sox got their lone tally in the first when Bagby walked Luke Appling and Joe Kuhel and Moose Solters dropped a single over the infield.

The Indians tied it up in the same frame when Oris Hockett singled, took second on Boudreau's infield out and scored on a double by Jeff Heath, who collected two more before the game ended.

The Indians were required to nick Bill Dietrich for a quartet of fifth inning singles to score the winning margin because Mack and Boudreau both were thrown out at the plate by Thurman Tucker, Chicago's rookie center-fielder, while attempting to tally from second on one-basers by Hockett and Ken Keltner. Boudreau's single plated Hockett.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The new major league baseball is about as lively as the one the Southern association uses. . . . And the Southern league always has insisted on plenty of pep in the Phils so there'd be plenty of guys with big batting averages to sell at the end of each season. . . . Lou Coleman of Spaulding's says the production line will be rolling by today so that there's no danger of a shortage the rest of the season. . . . Lou Smith is trying to round up 500 bicycles so that race fans can pedal to Rockingham park from the Lawrence, Mass., station where all the trains stop. . . . If he'd install a few mutant windows at the stadium so the riders could bet on themselves, the idea might go over.

CONFESSION

When ex-feather-weight champ Chalky Wright, who always thought training was getting aboard a train, turned up at the gym yesterday for the first time in seven weeks, Mike Heise greeted him: "What are you doing here, Chalky? Are you sick?" . . . "No," admitted Chalky gravely, "I'm just hungry."

Coast Guardsman Henry Bingham, rated as the best middleweight prospect to appear in Baltimore in a long time, learned boxing in Lieut. Jack Dempsey's classes at Manhattan beach.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Two 1942 stars of the National Professional Football League have doffed mole-skins in favor of white jackets and are busy at the Marquette University school of Medicine. They are Tackle Paul Berenzey of the Green Bay Packers, one-time Fordham ace, and End Bill Combs of the Philadelphia Eagles, formerly of Purdue. Berenzey is a lieutenant in the medical administrative corps of the army, and Combs an ensign in the navy.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Boxing instructor in his undergraduate days at Marquette University, Joseph R. McCarthy, law '35, has been promoted to a captaincy in the Marine Corps air wing and assigned to duty in the South Pacific. Capt. McCarthy is on leave as a circuit judge in the Appleton-Antigo-Shawano district of Wisconsin.

RICHMOND, Calif.—The war effort which has turned this city into one of the big shipbuilding centers of the west is showing its effect in an increase of the number of babies born. The March record of 142 babies topped all previous records by 25 and doubled the March, 1942, record.

Salem Thinclads Register Second Track Victory As They Beat Struthers Team

Winning 12 out of the 14 events,

Coach Ray Overturf's Quakers hung up their second track victory here yesterday afternoon at the expense of Struthers' High. The final count was 81 to 37.

The Quakers would have made it 13 out of 14 had it not been for an error committed in the half-mile relay which the Salem lads won easily in 1:41. One of the Salem baton receivers, however, stepped out of his lane and the victory was automatically ruled out.

Flick Entrikin set the scoring pace for the victors, registering three firsts and a third for 10 points.

Struthers' lone victory (earned) came in the high jump which Burton took with a leap of 5 feet, 11 inches. Bingham and Dunlap tied for second.

Art Hoover made his first appearance with the Salem trackers and captured the mile, his specialty, in the very good time of 4:57.2. Hoover was out with the mumps for some time and only got back to practice last week. He ran the distance Friday afternoon, his only complete try at the distance this season. As a result, Overturf is expecting him to chip some more time off his performance yesterday.

Hoover trailed Struthers' Farmer almost 50 yards going into the stretch but he had the finish stuff to come from behind, and edged the Struthers runner at the wire.

120 Yd. H. H.—Entrikin (S) won; Tarr (St) 2, Klem (St) 3. Time 17.5.

100 Yd. Dash—W. Krauss (S) won; Barton (St) 2, McLaughlin (St) 3. Time 11.2.

Mile—Hoover (S) won; Farmer (St) 2, Minchin (St) 3. Time 4:57.2.

880 Yd. Relay—Salem won in 1:41.1, but was disqualified; runner stepped out of baton exchange lane. (W. Krauss, Greene, Lanney, Ward).

440 Yd. Run—Fenko (S) won, F. Krauss (St) 2, Tarr (St) 3. Time 55.1.

220 Yd. Low Hurdles—Entrikin (S) won; Greene (S) 2, Evans (St) 3. Time 27.5.

880 Yd. Run—Fenko (S) won.

Reds Score 7 To 5 Win Over Pirates

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI, May 5.—Cincinnati Manager Bill McKechnie will send right hander, Bucky Walters against the Pittsburgh Pirates tonight in the first night baseball game at Crosley field this season.

Johnny Lanning is expected to receive the nod from Frankie Frisch. Tonight's contest decides the three-game series—the Reds pounded four Pirate pitchers for 17 hits and a 7 to 5 victory in Monday's game, while the Pittsburghers turned the tables for an 8 to 3 win yesterday.

The Reds however, outbatted Frisch's stalwarts in yesterday's contest 11 to 9 but Pirate Rookie Xavier Rescigno, up from Albany in the Eastern league, kept the Cincinnati blows well-spaced.

The Pirates collected all of their runs in the first four innings and then coasted. Little Lonnie Frey, Cincinnati second baseman, who is leading the National league in hitting with .429, when hitless in four trips to the plate.

ing candidates for an outfield berth, while his understudy, John Creevey, is being depended upon for some first-class pitching during the abbreviated schedule.

SALES TAX ISSUE FACES SHOWDOWN

House Taxation Committee Scheduled For Decision Today

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, May 5.—Legislation to remove the sales tax from restaurants, the druggists, the Ohio Hospital association and several other organizations urged approval of the measure, which would remove the sales tax from prescription medicines as well as from food.

Other developments in the legislature were:
The senate sidetracked the administration's bill to revise utility rate-making procedure.
The senate reconsidered the bill to revamp Ohio's congressional districts in 1951 and sent it to the house with a 19 to 12 endorsement.

The house labor committee recommended passage of the senate-approved bill relaxing the laws regulating employment of women and minors after adding an emergency clause designed to make the legislation effective immediately, and the house completed enactment of a bill exempting liquor permit holders from punishment for sale of beer and liquor to minors if the customer provides evidence that he is of legal age.

The senate also gave final approval to bills to facilitate the collection of delinquent real estate taxes and to expand the jurisdiction of the Lorain municipal court.

MINERS' TRUCE MAY RUN FOR DURATION

Coal Production Resumed As Union, Administration Stand Pat

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The stalemate coal wage struggle today stirred speculation here that the 15-day truce under which the industry now is operating may be extended indefinitely with Harold L. Ickes serving as boss of Uncle Sam's coal fields—perhaps for the duration.

Once again, coal poured into the war production furnaces at full blast, with most mines on a six-day week, but neither the administration nor the United Mine Workers gave the slightest hint of yielding in their wartime wage and jurisdictional tug-of-war.

At the same time, few informed sources felt another walkout—such as that of last weekend—would follow expiration of the truce, although they conceded this was an optimistic view since UMW President John L. Lewis plainly has given no indication he would discourage another stoppage. These sources stressed that, despite their differences, none of the principals in the dispute want to damage the war effort by cutting off the coal supply.

Both President Roosevelt and the fuel administrator who now bosses the government-operated mines left no doubt yesterday they still consider the War Labor board the only avenue for permanent armistice in the coal case. And Lewis stood just as solidly against the board which he terms prejudiced.

Ickes yesterday ordered on a six-day-week all mines which have received coal price adjustments to compensate for the extra wages—and some saw that as a possible way out for the UMW which seeks wage increases of $2-a-day and portal-to-portal underground pay, among other things. The sixth day's time-and-a-half would provide more pay for miners now working only five.

But operator spokesmen insisted most of the miners already were on such a schedule, and others pointed out that even if that paved the way for peace, any permanent agreement reached involving increases would have to be submitted to the board for approval.

at the Hague, Netherlands, and in the evening bombed the railway yards at Abbeville, France.

Last night RAF night fighter planes went up in covets to light off German raiders who dropped incendiary bombs on an East Anglian town. First reports said there were no casualties.

The eighth U. S. Air Force raid on Antwerp was notable in that for the first time full American fighter squadrons flew with their own command along with the bombers. Three escorting planes failed to return, but air force headquarters announced not a single bomber was lost. Several enemy fighter planes were reported shot down.

For Lieut. William Corson, 25, of Middleton, Ohio, bombardier of the fortress "Mizpah," it was a revenge raid for his older brother, Dan W. Corson, who was pilot of the "Danelien," named for their parents, which did not return from the Dec. 20 raid on Romilly.

GENERAL, BISHOP DIE IN AIRPLANE

Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, Bishop Adna W. Leonard Are Victims

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, May 5.—Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, 59, commander of all American army troops in the European theater of war, and Methodist Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, 68, of Washington, representing 31 American Protestant denominations in an inspection tour of U. S. troops abroad, were killed Monday in the Iceland crash of an Allied plane reported to have had other high-ranking U. S. army officials aboard.

Andrews' headquarters here said in an official announcement early today that "full information concerning the accident is not yet available" but disclosed the plane had fallen in "an isolated locality in Iceland," stepping-stone of the Allied northern air ferry route across the Atlantic.

The presence of Bishop Leonard on the plane was confirmed by the war department in Washington, after his son, A. W. Leonard, Jr., of Pittsburgh, Pa., disclosed he had been informed of the bishop's death and declared the war department told him that "only one enlisted man" had survived the crash. Bishop Leonard's presence aboard the plane was not mentioned in the original announcement here.

Andrews was the eighth, and highest-ranking, U. S. army general officer to be lost since the start of the war.

CURFEW MEASURE WILL BE ENACTED

Ordinance Committee Is Instructed to Work Out Legislation

responsibility on parents as well as children. The solicitor said he wasn't sure whether there was an old curfew law in effect, but recommended the adoption of a new measure, nevertheless. He said the curfew wouldn't be a cure-all, but declared it would do much good.

All of the councilmen agreed that the curfew should be placed in effect. Councilman-at-Large Charles Rheaume, who declared that there would be no excuse for passing a curfew law unless it was enforced, questioned police enforcement of tavern closing hours. "Why do these places remain open hours after they are forced to quit selling drinks?" he asked. No one in authority was present to answer his question.

The primary fault of children running around at night lies with the parents, Councilman Arch Wentz charged. "And this isn't a problem peculiar to Salem." Councilman Harry Vincent said he knew it to be a fact that High school children were seen in local taverns as late as 2 a. m. Himself the father of three girls, Vincent said he was in favor of a curfew.
